Probably no college ever made such a rapid advance in any branch of athleties as did William and Mary in basketball this year.

Before this season the game was never played here, and the team was almost entirely composed of freshmen. This team was organized by Coach Blanchard in February, and they immediately began to go up against teams that had been playing for years. In less than two months they defeated the Hampton Athletic team, the Hampton Independent, won the champlonship from the University of Virginia, and wound up by defeating the Newport News Y. M. C. To Complete Schedule.

The schedule committee composed of Manager J. J. Grim. Lynchburg; Mr. Hannon, of Norfolk; Mr. W. B. Bland, ley, of Richmond and Mr. Charles Bland, of Portsmouth, will meet in Richmond the sarly part of next week and arrange for the games that are to be played by the different teams in the Virginia State League this season.

While it is definitely known that the season will open here on the 26th of April, is has not yet been accertained which nine will go against the Richmond bunch on the diamond that day. As it looks at this time, Danville will probably come here. Manager Benny, with his crowd of ball tossers, may tackle the Richmond aggregation, and if this be the case, there will be a gane that will be worth the money. Benny was here last year and he knows the diamond. He will be given a showing in the garden for the Richmond crowd, and is expected to make good. Hall weighs one hundred and seventy-five pounds, stands five feet eleven inches, and is only twon-ty-two years old. He has played fast ball in the New England League and in the Connecticut League, and is highly recommended by Zeke Wrigley, who was with the Columbus, Ohlo, aggregation in the American Association championship series last year.

Wall is the latest man to sign with Manager Shaffer, and he is believed to be one of the fastest fellows on pulling down high ones that Richmond will see this year.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., March 27.—The Harvard 'varsity crew is apparently weak on the starboard side of the shell, and the coaches believe they can strengthen it, judging by the changes in the second boat. The appearance of Amberg, the star of hast year's freshmen eight, shows they are working for the starboard side.

Amberg, who played center on the hasket-buil team, rowed seven last year, and was said to be the smoothest oar on the river. He had intended not to row, but the pressure has evidently been very strong to get him out. Corlett, who stroked the winning four last year, was also out. He is a starboard man as well. Tappan, who rows at two, was shifted to three in the second to-day, with the possibility that he will replace Emmons there in the first eight soon. gation.

While it is not definitely decided upon as yet it is the belief that the visiting teams will stop at the same place. Busses will take the players from the hotel to the diamond and bring them back after the game.

Peyion Charters, the spit-ball artist, of Richmond, will, in all probability, play with the Columbia (S. C.) team in the South Attantic League this year.

He contemplated for some time playing with the Richmond crowd, but the salary limit here would not justify him in signing. Manager Charley Shaffor of the Richmond nine was instrumental in securing the herth on the Columbia team for Charters, who is conceded to be one of the best slab artists Richmond has produced since the days of Tannehill, Chesbro, Leever and others of like fame.

Charters was the only pitcher here last season who attempted to throw the spitball on the third strike.
